DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 7 & 13 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
2. Claims 14-18 & 23-29 are allowable over the prior art of record.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. Claims 1-6, 8-12 & 19-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Peek (5,644,784).
 - a. Peek teaches a DMA system having a substantially identical basic functional teachings of the claimed limitations as follows:

Claims 1-6, 8-12, 19-22

Peek (5,644,784)

- Determining an address for a burst write of a command and arguments of the command based upon an argument count of the command
 - Feature of (400) burst write of (408, 409, 418, 420/414, 422/412, 424/410, 426) based upon an (410/424)
- In response to performing the burst write, writing the arguments and the command starting from the address determined based up the argument count
 - Feature of (400) burst write of (408, 409, 418, 420/414, 422/412, 424/410, 426) based upon an (410/424)
- Writing the arguments and the command comprises writing the arguments prior to writing the command/writing the command after writing the augments
 - Feature of figures 6-7 where valid bits and address are written before control word (length count)

- Writing and arguments and the command comprises writing the arguments in a reverse order results in a last argument of the command being written prior to a first argument of the command being written
 - Feature of columns 4-5, lines 64-4
- A burst read of status and any outputs of the command/reading the status prior to reading the any outputs
 - Feature of column 3, lines 37-39
- Receiving a plurality of arguments of a command during a burst write
 - Feature of (400) burst write of (408, 409, 418, 420/414, 422/412, 424/410, 426) based upon an (410/424)
- After receiving the plurality of arguments, receiving the command during the burst write
 - Feature of (400) burst write of (408, 409, 418, 420/414, 422/412, 424/410, 426) based upon an (410/424)
- Receiving the plurality of arguments in a reverse order in which a last argument of the command is received prior to receiving the first argument of the command
 - Feature of figures 6-7 where valid bits and address are written before control word (length count)
- Storing the plurality of arguments and command in contiguously writable registers
 - Feature of (418)
- Executing the command based upon the plurality of arguments in response to receiving the command
 - Feature of (400) burst write of (408, 409, 418, 420/414, 422/412, 424/410, 426) based upon an (410/424)
- Storing status and outputs resulting from executing the command in contiguously readable registers
 - Feature of column 3, lines 37-39

b. For the above reasons, as for the claims 1-6, 8-12 &19-22, the claimed invention (method/instructions) would have been anticipated by the teachings of the Peek reference. However, the Peek reference utilizes substantially the same as the claimed invention, but slightly different data types/labels from the claimed invention. One skilled in the art can easily recognize similarity between the data types used in the claimed system (i.e., arguments, command, argument count, status) and the Peek system (i.e., source/destination addresses, control word, length count, status bit), since the above peeks data types can be broadly viewed/interpreted as arguments, commands, and argument counts. Therefore, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to one having ordinary skill in the art to come up with the claimed method/instructions from the teachings of the Peek reference, for the reasons stated above.
